MORE TROUBLE FOR THE POOR GER-MAN COBBLER.

The Reporter Gives Him a Little Pointer Which, Like All Other Advice. Only Does Him Far More

Harm Than Good. Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.) One time I don't baf 2 cents' worth of work in der shop und belief I vhas a bankrupt mgn, vhen a young man comes in und like me to fix oop his heel. He vhas a reporter by some newspaper, he says, und vhen he sees

I haf no work he says to me: "Cobbler, you vhas a man who don't catch on. It whas ash casy ash grease if you know how. In one week I bring 200 peoples to dis shop."

"How can you did it?" I says. "Vhell, you listen to me. I shall say in my paper tomorrow dot your uncle in Shermany, who vhas a baron, has died und left you $250,000. Eaferbody who reads it whill want to look at you. Eaferbody who comes vhill bring shoes to cobble. You shall haf so much work det you can't go to bed nights. I do dot whay one time for a secondhand clothler, und he vhas a rich mans in one year. Ha! but we shall fool der public und make some Vanderbilts of you."

I dunno if it whas all right, but dot reporter talks und talks und goes

His joy vhas so great dot he almost hangs himself. He vhill at once buy a steam yacht und a $10,000 diamond pin. Call at bis shop und see him." It vhas sooch a nice article dot I laugh all oafer und my wife sheds tears. In two hours a young man mit his hat on his ear comes in und says:

"Vhell, cobbler, hooray for you. By Sheorge, but dot whas some good luck! You can pay me dot fife dollars now." "Vhat fife dollars?"

"Vhy, dot five dollars I lend you last pencil, und he says:

"Helle, cobbler! So you haf struck luck at last? All right—all right. I like you to put down $10 for der hot air fund fer peer shildren."
"But how can I de dot?" I says.

"Vhat! De you mean to tell me dot you can't spare $10 out of $250,000! By Sheorge, but you whas a slink of a man if you den't did it! Dis whas no shokes. Winter whas only three months avhay, und we like to get dot hot air

I couldn't did it, of course, und he calls me ten bad names und kicks oafer der water pall. I trembles all oafer vhen he vhas gone, und my wife says we shall be in two poorhouses before Sunday. I almost haf some tears in my eyes when a womans comes in. She vhas old und lame und poor. She takes me by der hand und says:

"Cobbler, I rejoice mit you. vhas a good man, und I vhas glad of your luck. May der Lord open your heart to help me get a new wooden leg. You can easily spare me $25?"
"But I can't did it," I says.

"Then make it $15." "I can't make her feefteen cents." "De you mean to say you won't help me get some new teeth?" "I can't did it."

"Vhat! Vhat! Der Lord brings you $250,000 in a lump, und yet you won't gif a dellar to belp Aunt Sally buy a new wooden leg und some teeth! You don't mean dot you whas sooch a villain as dot?" "My dear womans, I can't spare no money-not a cent." "Den you whas some unhung villain.

und I vhill see dot no respectable peoples speak mit you! Villain! Miser! Base liar! May heaven deal mit you!" Dot vhas awful, but before I can shed some tears a policemans comes in. He smiles und laughs und winks und

"Vhell, Dutchy, you haf struck it rich, und I congratulates you. By Sheorge, but $250,000 in cold plunks vhas all right! I vhas a leetle short dis month und like to borrow $100 from you."

"But I can't lend him," I says. "Make It $50, then."

"I cap't did it." "Vhell, I try to get along mit $25, but my family vhill suffer."

"I can't lend nopody 5 cents." "Vhat! Vhat! You vhas rolling in gold, und yet you go back on der policemans on your beat? My dear sir, do you know that you vhas doing? Don't you buzzsaw mit some monkeys! Gif up."

Den dot policemans takes me by der neck und jams me around until he wrecks my shop und almost kills me. und vhen be gets tired und goes avhay he says:

"I shall be back in two hours, und if you don't haf dot money ready you vhas gone up some spouts!" I vhas bruises all oafer, und my wife faints avhay, und so I lock up der shop, und we sits in der back yard for three days und lifs on onions. M. QUAD.

NOT TO BE IGNORED.

Decidedly Unique Yarn About Bridai Couple. They boarded the train at Decatur, and every passenger in the car instantly spotted them for a bridal couple. By common consent no one paid any attention to them after the first glance. They were hardly seated before they clasped hands, but when they slyly looked around no one was gazing at them. Pretty soon the bride dropped her head on the groom's shoulder. His face took on a tender smile, and he glanced around expecting to see half a dozen grinning faces. No one grinned. By and by he put his arm around her, but the action passed unnoticed. At the end of an hour the bride began to weep, and it could plainly be perceived that the groom was indignant. He choked back his feelings for a time, but presently he rose up and looked around the car and said:

"Ladles and gentlemen, we are s bridal couple." The passengers looked up indifferently and then looked away. 'We were married at 9 o'clock this morning," continued the groom. No one took any interest. "Look here, now, but I want to know what alls this crowd!" he demanded as the red spread clear around his neck. "As I said, we are a newly married couple. No one puld us any attention, however, as we came in, and nobody seems to care 2 cents about us now. Here is the bride. She's as good as they make 'em. I want every man in this car to come up and safate her it has got to fight me!"

He pulled off his cont. spat on his hands and doubled up a fist like a ham. He looked dengerous, and it was plain that he meant what he said. A drummer from Boston was the first man to rise up and go over and smack the bride on the check, and he was followed by all the others. When the last one had returned to his sent, the groom put on his cent and said:

"There, that's all right. This girl and I courted for seven long years, got married at last in a thunderstorm, and we haven't got but $50 for a bridal tour and to set up in housekeeping, but we propose to let folks know we are on earth just the same. Now, then, we are going to squeeze hands and hug, and the more giggling I hear the better I shall like it!" M. QUAD.
